Research
Interests

I'm passionate about designing multimodal foundation models that accelerate scientific discovery. Towards this, my research foci include foundation model pre-training, understanding and exploring their capabilities, as well as continual training to align them with human desiderata. By focusing on these areas, I aim to develop trustworthy models that not only advance artificial intelligence but also serve practical purposes in various scientific domains.

Education

University of Southern California 08/2022 - Present
Ph.D. in Computer Science
Advisor(s): Dani Yogatama, Willie Neiswanger

Northwestern University 09/2019 - 06/2021
Master of Science in Industrial Engineering and Management Sciences
Advisor(s): Jorge Nocedal

Carnegie Mellon University 08/2013 - 08/2019
Master of Science in Machine Learning
Bachelor of Science in Statistics and Mathematics (with Honors)
